

Priest Among Exchange of Spy Suspects

NEW YORK (AP) — Two commercial airliners roared past each other over the Atlantic Ocean today to complete a swap of spy suspects — two Russians for two Americans, one of the latter a priest given up for dead 16 years ago.

In London Friday night, after a flight from Moscow, stepping aboard a New York-bound plane were the Rev. Walter Ciszek, 58, of Shenandoah, Pa., Roman Catholic Jesuit priest arrested for espionage in 1940, and Marvin W. Makinen, 24, Fulbright scholar from Ashburnham, Mass.

At Idlewild Airport the two Russians, Ivan D. Egorov, 44, and his wife, Aleksandra, 39, departed by plane for Moscow via Copenhagen.

The person-for-person exchange was announced Friday afternoon when charges against the Soviet couple were dismissed in Brooklyn federal court.

Father Ciszek was arrested by Soviet authorities 23 years ago on the Polish border and was sentenced to a 25-year prison term as a spy. In 1947, when his father died and the family estate was probated, Father Ciszek was declared legally dead.

Not a word came from behind the Iron Curtain until 1955, when a letter arrived at the convent of the Bernadette order of St. Francis in Reading, Pa. The letter was addressed to Mother Mary Evangelina, Father Ciszek's sister.

She informed conveyed the news to another family member, Sister Conrad, also a member of the Bernadette order. Another sister of Rev. Ciszek, Helen Gerhardt, lives in Washington D.C.

The family got in touch with the State Department, and last August relatives were informed by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy that the priest's release was expected.

Makinen was on vacation in the Soviet Union after a scholarship year at the Frge University in

Storm Loss Damaging to Castro

By BEN F. MEYER

WASHINGTON (AP) — An anti-Castro group says the devastation wrought in Cuba by hurricane Flora has struck a major blow at Fidel Castro's dictatorship and "almost anything could happen" to him now.

The Citizens Committee for a Free Cuba, an anti-Castro organization, said today hurricane damage is only the latest threat to the prime minister's rule. Also endangering his position, it said, is the collapse of Cuba's food supply and "increasing disenchantment with increasingly rigid application of Communist discipline and food rationing."

Even if the hurricane damage was not catastrophic, committee experts said, it unquestionably represents an extremely serious setback for the Castro government.

Reports of the damage dealt Cuba by the hurricane have been sparse. U.S. government experts do not have enough information to evaluate the situation definitely. The Cuban press has written of 46 deaths. The Cuban radio network has spoken of 200.

Havana radio, meanwhile, has cautioned against rumors until there is an official announcement. The committee pieced together information it said it received from inside Cuba and messages transmitted over an interior Cuban radio network in an attempt to appraise the damage.

It quoted a message from Castro transmitted in Cuba on the night of Oct. 7 as saying: "I fear the magnitude of harm to human life from the hurricane will be very great."

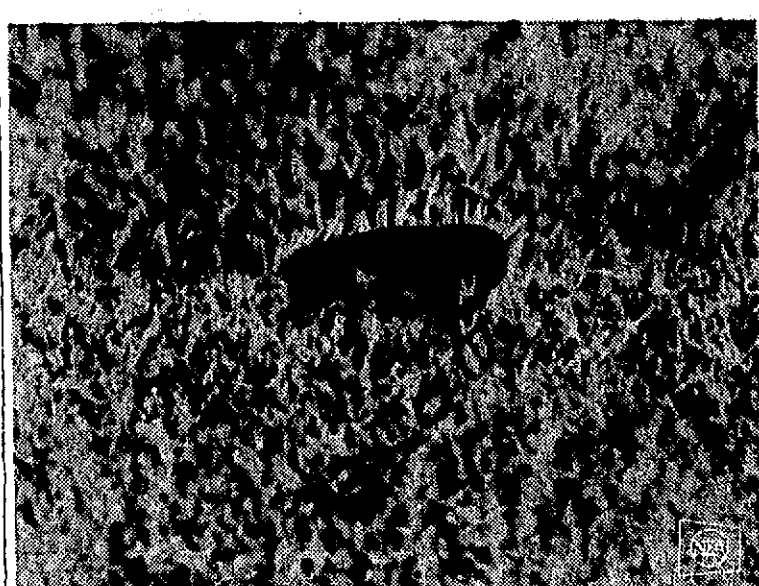

"All of the area of the Cauto Basin where thousands of families lived has been totally inundated and the magnitude of damage of this hurricane cannot really be calculated," Castro was quoted as saying.

Mayor Jorge Risquet, a military commander, said the situation was equally bad in other areas.

The committee, an organization of U.S. citizens opposing the Castro regime, said about half of Cuba "suffered extremely heavy losses of every description."

Arkansas Production of Rice Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department predicted Thursday Arkansas farmers would produce more rice this year than the entire nation consumed in 1962.

The department forecast an Arkansas rice crop of 17,302,000 hundredweight, an average of 4,100 pounds per acre.

The nation consumed just over a billion pounds of rice last year.

The department's figures are for rough rice, of course, and national consumption is in milled rice. A great portion—almost half—of the rice crop in the U.S. is exported annually, and rice has a number of industrial uses, too.

The Thursday forecast compares with a Sept. 1 estimate of 17,091,000 hundredweight and is eight per cent higher than the 1962 production of 15,930,000 hundredweight.

L. C. Carter, head of the Arkansas Rice Growers Co-operative, said Thursday night at Stuttgart that he had expected the forecast to be a little higher.

He said the figures on rough rice were misleading, because rice can't be consumed until it is milled and the milling process "reduces volume by about 32 per cent."

The 1963 Statistical Abstract of the United States estimates that the U.S., with a 1960 census population of 179,323,175, consumed 6.4 pounds of rice per capita in 1962. Based on the same population figure, this is a total consumption of about 1,147,668,320 pounds of rice in 1962 in the U.S.

The Arkansas rice forecast was for 17,302,000,000 pounds.

Though the state is wrestling with a critical drought, rice is a drought-proof crop because it is normally cultivated with irrigation.

The same is not true for soybeans. The department forecast for Arkansas' soybean crop declined from Sept. 1 record figure of 61,404,000 bushels to 57,018,000 bushels. The 1962 crop was 50,200,000 bushels.

The rice increase and soybean decrease were in line with national trends.

Addition to Stadium Possible

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—There is nothing to stand in the way of a financial program to add 10,000 seats to War Memorial Stadium, William J. Smith, legislative secretary to the governor, said today.

Smith said all legal problems have been solved and he doesn't understand why the program hasn't gotten under way.

Plans for new seats and a new press box on the west side of the stadium have been completed, Smith said.

Asked why the program hadn't been started, he said, "That is what I would like to know. It is up to the University of Arkansas and the Stadium Commission."

Star Will Introduce New 9pt News Type on Monday

The news type you are now reading will be replaced with a new type face 12½ per cent larger in Hope Star beginning Monday.

The advent of the new type is made possible by a change in wire transmission standards all over the United States Sunday by the Associated Press and United Press International in conjunction with the newspaper ownership associations.

The type you are now reading is Mergenthaler's Corona 8pt on a 9pt slug, which is the largest type face possible under present wire transmission standards. The new type will be Corona 9pt solid, that is, a 9pt face on a 9pt slug. This will mean an increase of 12½ per cent in the size of the type letters, but fitting the same amount of type into the space occupied by the smaller 8pt face.

Over the years The Star has raised its news type face from 7pt to 9pt — an overall increase of nearly 33 per cent. The changeover by the wire services this Sunday has to be made simultaneously from coast to coast because today's news wire transmission is entirely by perforated tape — and unless the transmission is uniform the various newspapers would find their typesetting machines — Linotype or Intertype — unable to accept the tape and turn it into type.

Soviets Block U.S. Convoy From Berlin

By JOHN WEYLAND

BERLIN (AP)—Armed U.S. and Soviet troops confronted each other for a second day today as the Reds continued to block a U.S. military convoy from entering Berlin despite strong Western protests.

The 18-vehicle convoy of 61 officers and men—voluntarily joined by a second U.S. convoy—remained encamped on the autobahn just outside Berlin. About 100 combat-ready Soviet troops, supported by East German reinforcements, barred their way while U.S. officials pressed for a solution to the serious and unexpected cold war incident.

In Washington, Secretary of State Dean Rusk summoned Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin and called the action "entirely unwarranted."

A strong U.S. protest against the blockade was delivered to Soviet headquarters in Potsdam. U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler also delivered an official complaint to the Soviets in Moscow.

The Soviets have not replied to the protests.

The Soviets brought on the incident at the Babelsberg checkpoint on the 110-mile superhighway Friday by demanding a head count of the men in the first convoy. This was their way of underscoring Soviet control over land passage by U.S. military forces to Communist- surrounded West Berlin.

The U.S. commander refused to have his men leave their vehicles for the count.

The second convoy of 144 men and 25 vehicles rolled out from the Berlin garrison after the trouble began and stood by the blocked convoy.

While there was a flurry of diplomatic activity to ease the situation, the isolated U.S. troops spent a quiet night encircled by the Red troops.

Many Cities Have Water Problems

By JOHN R. STARR

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Horse-and-buggy planning of city water facilities is forcing many cities into a critical situation because of a problem which should have been left in the horse-and-buggy era, a state Health Department official said Thursday.

Glen T. Kellogg, chief sanitary engineer for the department, said the problem is drought.

The horse-and-buggy planning is a single water supply, he said. He cited the case of Little Rock, which he said is "sitting pretty" because of the construction several years ago of an alternate water supply.

Meanwhile, the state Civil Defense agency scoured the state for more tank trucks for possible emergency use in communities with water shortages.

Stew Prosser, state CD director, said a North Little Rock businessman had five trucks and had agreed to make them available if they are needed.

The agency got five trucks early Thursday at the Red River Army Depot west of Texarkana and drove them to Morrilton where students at the Petit Jean Vocational Technical School will get them ready for service.

Civil Defense already has tank trucks operating at Lincoln and Hartford and a truck standing by at Clinton.

The truck at Clinton has not yet been needed, Prosser said, because a poultry processing firm which uses a great deal of water had decided to lease some pipe and pump water from a nearby lake rather than haul it in trucks.

Kellogg said Arkansas communities would not be facing water supply shortages if they had planned ahead.

Little Rock normally draws its water from Lake Winona, but Lake Maumelle, constructed several years ago, is available for service when Winona gets low.

Kellogg listed a dozen cities which he said have water supply problems. These were Clinton, Leslie, Marshall, Green Forest, Yellville, West Fork, Huntsville, Altus, Mountain View, Hot Springs, Greenwood and Waldron.

Some, he said, are taking steps to insure an adequate water supply in the future. Some are not.

The Health Department said it is keeping a close check on communities with water problems to prevent the creation of health problems.

Booklet About Eyes Given to Library

The Arkansas Optometric Association has today, as a public service, placed with the Hempstead County Library a booklet compiled by the Massachusetts Library Association entitled "Easy on Your Eyes."

This booklet, published by the New England Council of Optometrists Inc., contains a 52 page listing of available books printed in large type. The booklet itself is in large clear print making it particularly useful to the partially seeing or those individuals with subnormal vision.

Gets 5 Years on 2 Counts of Burglary

Two pleas were heard in Hempstead Circuit Court Friday by Judge Lyle Brown and one defendant was sentenced to prison.

Marvin Sylvester Arnold pleaded guilty to two counts of burglary and was sentenced to five years in prison. He admitted to breaking into Plaza Court and a service station here last weekend. Arrested at Memphis he was returned to Hope Wednesday.

Louise Brown, 25, Negro, entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of first degree murder in connection with the fatal stabbing Sunday of Elbert Williams, 25, also a Negro. The incident occurred at a Negro night spot on North Hazel Street.

Politicians Fighting for Party Lead

By ARTHUR GAVSHO

BLACKPOOL, England (AP)—Britain's ruling Conservative party was split today by a bitter three-man fight to succeed ailing Harold Macmillan as prime minister and party leader.

Deputy Prime Minister Richard A. Butler led the field despite a dramatic challenge Thursday night by Lord Hailsham, science minister and party leader in the House of Lords.

The dark horse, Chancellor of the Exchequer Reginald Maudling, was to address the 4,000 delegates at the annual party conference here today. Maudling, 46, a Tory version of a New Frontiersman, has confided to friends he thinks he has a chance of getting the prize if Butler and Hailsham slug each other hard enough.

Hailsham, 56, came out running hard soon after Macmillan announced his decision to step down. The prime minister, 69, underwent prostate surgery Thursday. The operation was successful but Macmillan said his condition would not permit him to lead the Conservative campaign against the Labor party challenge in next year's general election.

A few hours later Hailsham, pale, excited and trembling, told a meeting of party workers he would give up his peerage and seek election to the House of Commons, a necessary step to qualify for prime minister.

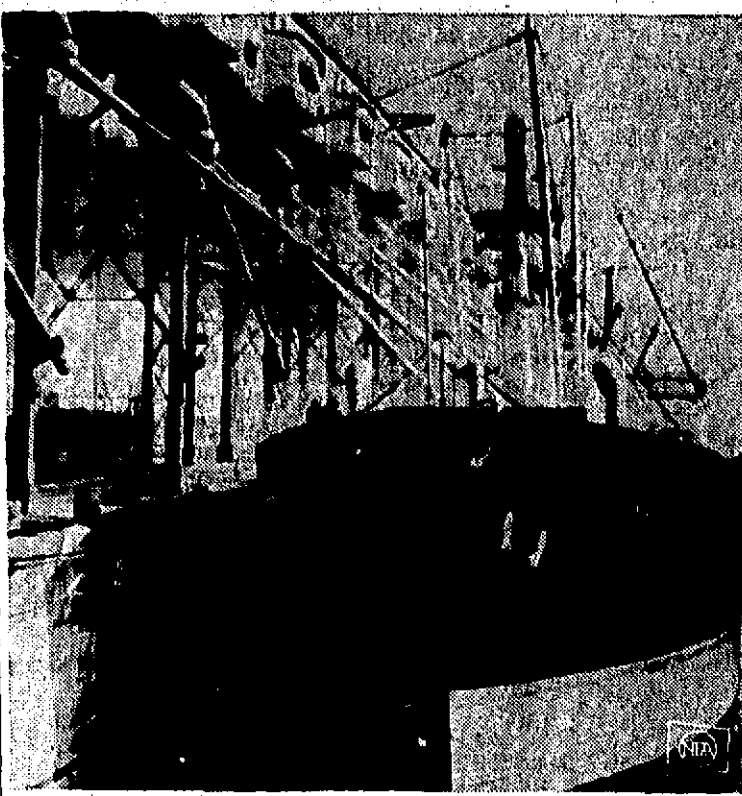

Hailsham's declaration won tremendous applause from rank and file workers who believe his emotionalism and flamboyance is needed to put new life into the party. But some cabinet colleagues in private were tearing him to shreds.

Tory leaders never are elected. They evolve. The party conference is only one element of the movement. Another is the cabinet, and the party high command which together form the Tory Establishment. A third element is the so-called 1922 committee, which is a sort of caucus of parliamentary members and cabinet members. Their consensus will help determine who should succeed Macmillan.

Hailsham seems likely to emerge as the darling of rank and file conference delegates. Butler, a cabinet veteran who was ousted for the prime minister's ship by Macmillan in 1957, is strong with his cabinet colleagues but distrusted by the party's right wing. Maudling has strong support among Conservative members of Commons.

Butler, depulized by Macmillan to lead the government while he is ill, has been invited to substitute for the prime minister as the chief speaker at a mass rally Saturday. A brilliant speech would tighten his grip on the government and party machine.

Injunction to Be Appealed

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — An anti-picketing injunction against striking University of Arkansas employees will be appealed to the Arkansas Supreme Court, a union official said today.

Meanwhile the university scheduled a help wanted advertisement in the Fayetteville Northwest Arkansas Times Saturday edition in an effort to replace the striking employees.

The ad called for applications by men to fill "certain prominent full-time maintenance service positions."

John Hale of the striking American Federation of State County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) said the Washington Chancery Court injunction against picketing, issued earlier this week, would be appealed.

The appeal had not reached the high court today.

Some 65 union members struck last Friday for higher pay and better job security.

Five Large Cities Are Named for Discoverer of America and Many Smaller Ones

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Star Feature Writer

Today is observed as the date Columbus discovered America. The exact date of his birth is unknown, but the Italian navigator who dared to think the world was round when others were certain it was flat is believed to have been born in Genoa, Italy.

We know what he looked like, thanks to eye-witness reports more than four centuries old. He was tall and powerfully built with a high forehead, an aquiline nose, and thin gray hair. One account said his long hair was pure white, but it is agreed that his light-colored eyes were sad and thoughtful.

Columbus said he became a sailor at 14, but he should have added that he also continued the family trade of weaving for a time. Though he had the right conception of the world as a sphere, he underestimated its great size. Like many others of his time, he believed that the world ended at the edge of the sea.

He was so sure of finding Asia when he set sail on his famous voyage, that he carried a letter of introduction to the great khan of Cathay so that Spain might establish trade with him. He dreamed of finding a new trade route to the East. What he found was beyond anything he had dared to anticipate — a new land in the West, not the East.

Every child is taught the jingle "in fourteen hundred ninety-two Columbus sailed the ocean blue." The fact is he set sail on August 3, 1492, and the "Pinta," "Nina" and "Santa Maria" with a combined crew of 88 men landed in what is today the West Indies on October 12. Columbus deserves the praise heaped upon him through the years, but let's not overlook the other 87. After all, they were not as sure as Columbus was that the earth was round. Their plunge into the unknown could be likened to going into outer space without instruments of accurate direction.

The "Santa Maria" with a crew of 52 and the "Pinta" and the "Nina" with crews of 18 each brought back unknown treasures to Spanish Queen Isabella and King Ferdinand including gold, cotton, parrots, curious arms, mysterious plants, strange birds and beasts and Indians whom Columbus brought back for Christian baptism.

The explorer was made a "Don" after his return, and the Queen was so fascinated by him that she persuaded her husband to sign a paper giving Columbus astounding powers of sovereign and financial aspects. One of the earliest known trips made on borrowed money was turning out exceptionally well.

Then, the old double-cross came into play, and on a later trip to the new world Columbus ended up in chains. Though he was later freed, the explorer never forgot the humiliation that had been his, and he kept his former shackles hanging on the wall of his home until his death.

Columbus was a religious man. He would have had to believe in a higher being or he could not have undertaken such a venturesome voyage. His faith was Christian, and as such he remembered those of other beliefs as well. His will included provision for a Jewish friend who had been faithful in his service to Columbus.

Five large cities in the U.S.A. are named for this man. They are Columbus — Georgia, Indiana, Mississippi, Nebraska and Ohio. The latter is the capital of that state. Besides those there are innumerable smaller hamlets with his name. The Columbus in Arkansas is our neighbor.

Rice Surplus Compared to Wheat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Latest government crop reporting figures indicate the rice industry may be headed for surplus difficulties, but nothing compared to that hanging over wheat.

The 1962-63 crop marketing year ended with a carryover supply of about 7.5 million bags, rough rice basis. This is between 3.5 and 4 million bags more than is regarded under farm programs as an essential reserve for possible short crops and other emergencies.

This carryover supply is below the nine million bags which the Agriculture Department had forecast last year. The rice carryover is less than 10 per cent of this year's indicated crop whereas the wheat carryover was upwards of 90 per cent of this year's production.

On the basis of the department's crop estimate, this marketing year's crop placed at around 74.8 million bags. Should domestic consumption and exports equal those of the past year, 64 million bags would move into use, leaving a carryover of 10.8 million a year from now.

Argentina has been under a caretaker government since March 1962, when the military, in ousting Frondizi, threw the country into confusion. Two picket civil wars broke out in this period.

Most experts feel that in electing Illio, Argentines have given democracy one of the biggest boosts in Latin America since the Alliance for Progress was formulated two years ago.

Mrs. Nhu to Keep Pace Regardless
NEW YORK (AP)—Despite extreme exhaustion, Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu appeared unwilling to let up on the grueling pace she set for herself in support for her brother-in-law's regime in South Viet Nam.

The South Vietnamese First Lady scheduled a question and answer session at Fordham University today. Arrangements included a president's luncheon, presumably for faculty only, and a tour of the campus.

The diminutive beauty was visibly shaken upon arriving at Sarah Lawrence College in suburban Bronxville for her talk with 700 women students Thursday.

He declined an invitation to go briefly to the college president's house for a rest but continued to conduct her forum with a physician, Dr. Vincent Pascale, nearby. Her voice was tremulous and hesitant, and her hands could hardly hang onto her notes.

Later at her Barclay Hotel suite in Manhattan another physician examined the 38-year-old Mrs. Nhu and announced she was in good spirits but over-tired. Mrs. Nhu had energetically scheduled some 40 TV show tapings, interviews and lectures during her three week visit in this country. Some of these have been canceled because, she said, she did not want the public to get tired of looking at her.

Mrs. Nhu's 18-year-old daughter, Mrs. Dinh Le Thuy, says her mother often becomes visibly exhausted after an emotional speech.

The emotional key was fairly low at Sarah Lawrence College, however. Mrs. Nhu only smiled wanly at six young ladies flaunting placards protesting the regime of her brother-in-law, President Ngo Dinh Diem, and Buddhist suicides.

She again recited a series of events which she says prove that the fire suicides were incited by pro-Communists.

Argentina to Elect New Government

By ARY MOLEON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The setbacks for democracy in Latin America represented by recent military takeovers in the Dominican Republic and Honduras may be offset to some extent today when Argentina inaugurates a freely elected government.

One of the wealthiest nations in Latin America, Argentina is regarded by many as potentially the most influential Latin American country.

The president of the council of the Organization of American States, Gonzalo Pardo of Costa Rica, said this week just before leaving for Buenos Aires to attend the inauguration of Argentine president-elect Arturo Umberto Illia:

"We are filled with the hope at the idea of having Argentina as leader of a democratic movement in Latin America."

Latin American countries have looked up to Argentina because of its advanced status. Richly endowed by nature, it is underpopulated with a racially homogeneous people, predominantly of Spanish and Italian descent.

Literacy is exceptionally high; the skill of Argentine workmen ranks with the best of any industrial nation; the climate, except in the cold south, is temperate.

But Argentina's influence has been practically absent from inter-American political life for more than two decades.

A pro-Nazi administration kept the country neutral until the last days of World War II. Then Juan Peron antagonized the other Latin American nations with his dictatorship.

After Peron overthrew the regime of President Arturo Frondizi made a vain effort to link Argentina to the neutralist camp outside the hemisphere. He was the first Argentine president to visit India.

Union Declares Plant Unfair

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers has filed a charge of unfair labor practices against General Industries Electronics Co. of Forrest City.

The union lost a representation election two weeks ago. It contends in the charge, filed with the National Labor Relations Board, that the firm restrained employees in their efforts to organize, join the union and bargain collectively.

The company makes fractional horsepower electric motors.

Men, Wives Square Off Politically

SULPHUR ROCK, Ark. (AP)—When women and men line up on opposite sides of the political fence, the men have just got to expect the same feminine tricks which confront them at home.

So, maybe it came as no surprise to the "Men's Party" Wednesday when Mrs. Verna Travis, the political czar of the female set at Sulphur Rock, said: "I've got a rabbit up my sleeve and it's my little secret until I get everything all set."

Mrs. Travis is city recorder of the Independence County town of 225 persons, but she is running for mayor on a "Women's Party" ticket which is waging an all-out fight with the "Men's Party" for control of the city government.

Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett issued an opinion to Mrs. Travis Wednesday, saying that state law requires that a candidate in the Nov. 5 municipal election is not eligible to run on a poll tax which expired last Oct. 2, but must hold a current poll tax.

Why did she need to know that?

"It's just one of the shrewd tricks a woman can play," Mrs. Travis told The Associated Press in an interview. "But I want it all in writing before I release it."

She wouldn't divulge the secret information, but when asked if one of her party's candidates might not be qualified, she said:

"If it was one of mine I wouldn't be asking about it, would I?"

A 1963 law requires write-in candidates to notify the county board of election commissioners of their intention to be write-in candidates at least 30 days before the election. Bennett told Mrs. Travis.

She noted in the interview that the write-in deadline passed last Saturday.

Mrs. Travis runs beauty shops in Sulphur Rock and Batesville, nine miles west. She organized the "Women's Party" when it appeared last month that no one would file for city office. The men promptly followed suit with their own party. Both parties have full slates of candidates for mayor, recorder and the city council.

Of her secret, she said: "I've known about this all along. I've talked to the election board about it."

Business Looks for More Trading

By SAM DAWSON
P Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. businessmen are looking beyond the controversial exchange of American wheat for Russian gold to the uncertain chances of further expansion of trade between the rival blocs.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee is going to study the pros and cons of such a new trade policy.

Americans have a lot they'd like to sell.

Trade has languished for a reason familiar to private business and financial dealings anywhere: The Soviets mainly don't want to buy what we want to sell; we won't sell what they want to buy.

The difference between this and an ordinary private business impasse is only partly political policy. There's also the matter of where would the Russians get the dollars we demand, since we don't want their rubles?

This is answered in the case of the wheat deal by Russia's letting loose part of its large stock of gold, something we do want. We are to get either the metal or dollars bought abroad by gold — and we're glad to have those dollars removed from foreign financial markets.

Trade between the Soviet Union and the United States has been hampered by: first, their lack of any great volume of export materials or products we need; second, our refusal to sell goods that could be classified as strategic, or converted to military use; third, their disinterest and lack of funds for buying the consumer goods we are willing and anxious to sell; and fourth, large sums they owe us, going back to World War II days.

Our imports from the Soviet Union have varied only slightly from year to year for some time. Our exports soared in 1960 and 1961 and then dropped again.

But while there's been little interest in trade between the Soviet Union and the United States, American businessmen and Russians have fought trade battles on a number of world markets.

Mrs. Nhu to Meet the Press Sunday

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—South Viet Nam's photogenic Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu apparently has heard about the perils of over-exposure on American television, but she has a lot to learn about making friends and influencing networks.

When the Vietnamese First Lady announced plans to visit this country, the three major networks plunged into their usual fierce competition for exclusive interviews. She — or her representatives — apparently granted practically all requests, network and local.

But as things stand now, NBC's "Meet the Press" show next Sunday will be her only exposure on network TV.

Chet Huntley noted during his Tuesday night newscast that Mrs. Nhu had at that point called off three scheduled television interviews "because she is too busy and doesn't want to risk overexposure."

Wednesday, she canceled an interview scheduled for Friday morning's NBC "Today Show." Then she broke a date for a two-hour "Open End" session, set for weekend syndication by host David Susskind.

Comic Jerry Van Dyke, who has been having pretty thick going as a regular on CBS' "Judy Garland," has been dropped. And a better thing couldn't happen to a nice guy and—in the right surroundings—a good comedian.

The network is going ahead with some ideas for a comedy series for Jerry, hopefully for next season.

30 Forest Fires in Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Thirty forest fires burned over 493 acres in Arkansas Wednesday as a critical forest fire situation continued to mount.

"Give us a little wind and away she goes," said State Forester Fred Lang, who for the past two weeks has said only an absence of wind has kept the woods from becoming a holocaust.

Lang said that the various paper and lumber companies which provide forest fire fighting help had responded well to his request to get their equipment ready and had joined forest rangers on a standby basis.

Success in holding down the loss during this extended drought is due to quick action when a fire is reported, Lang said.

"We try to get in quickly and keep the fire contained in less than seven acres," he said.

"When it gets as large as seven acres it builds up its own draft and winds."

Lang said the Weather Bureau has given him no hope as to when rain might put an end to the current dry spell and ease his situation.

"Earlier this week they said we might get rain by the weekend, but they've dropped that now," he said.

Lang said earlier this month that the situation is as critical as in 1952, when the state lost a quarter of a million acres to forest fires.

Already this year more than 150,000 acres have been burned over.

Mrs. Gibbon was shivering. "How do you know all this?"

"I can't tell you who told me, but you can depend on it."

"I don't . . . don't know what to do."

"Get word to him. Right away. Mrs. Gibbon — as soon as you can."

He reached to the door and opened it. She responded like an automaton as he pushed her gently into the living room. Quickly closing the door on her, he crossed the porch and hurried along the walk, his heels noisy again. Just before reaching the gap in the hedge, he shifted aside and crouched for a moment, watching the house; then he circled soundlessly across the grass toward the side window.

Mrs. Gibbon was still standing just inside the door, woodenly, stunned with bewilderment and indecision.

Suddenly she moved across the room. A telephone was sitting on the table beside the settee. She reached toward it. Her thin hand froze in midair; then she jerked it back as if the phone was too hot to touch.

The gesture was eloquent. It confirmed Blake's suspicion that Gibbon actually had been in touch with his mother. She knew where to reach him by phone. He must have called her earlier in the day, probably as soon as he had heard the news of Val's violent death. Before that he had been a small-time, forgivable absconder, but now he had unwittingly touched murder, and he must have recognized the danger in the fact that he had shown himself in the victim's home. He must have immediately warned Mrs. Gibbon against using the phone again, for fear the wire would be tapped; and she had remembered in time.

She turned away, walked stiffly and aimlessly across the room; then she quickly turned back to the rattan desk in the far corner. Sitting, she opened a drawer and found a sheet of paper and an envelope, and began to write. She hadn't thought of going to an outdoor phone booth; perhaps there wasn't one anywhere nearby. There was no car parked in front of this house; she had none.

When she had finished writing, she rose. Blake went back across the lawn. At a spot near the walk he crouched down against the hedge. The door of the cottage opened and Mrs. Gibbon came hurrying toward him, the letter held in one hand against her bosom. She did not see Blake against the black background.

When she was a few steps away, he straightened, reached, plucked the letter away. She squeaked with fright and froze.

"I'll take it to him. Faster that way. Don't worry, Mrs. Gibbon!" She stood gaping after him as he hurried along the sandy path.

When he reached his car, he stopped and looked back. Mrs. Gibbon was letting him go. If the house was being watched, no one was coming after him. He switched the headlights on and read the scrawl on the envelope: George Murdock, No. 5 Blue Bay Cabanas, West Fernanda Beach, Florida.

Blue Bay Cabanas consisted of six identical boxlike structures sitting on the east side of the road, in two rows of three, one row behind the other. They were marriage? Out of the millions who are married today, there must be several thousand who have celebrated silver and golden or, in rare cases, diamond anniversaries. The discard of the courtship technique once married could be the reason so many couples are shipwrecked on the reefs of discord. Praise can be uttered in the same breath as censure and is far more effective.

While young couples and some not so young, flit hither and yon in a desperate attempt to escape ennui, we derive great pleasure from just being together; watching TV, listening to the radio, talking or holding hands. Tractor Crushes Man to Death

MELBOURNE, Ark. (AP)—Floyd D. Koyme, 23, was found dead Wednesday on his father's farm about four miles east of Oxford. Sheriff Boyce Cook said he had been crushed by a tractor, probably Tuesday morning.

The body was found by Verl Taylor, a neighbor, Cook said. He said Taylor went looking for Koyme after the victim had not been seen since the weekend.

The sheriff said the older-model tractor Koyme was operating flipped when the front wheels hit a stump.

Housing Bid

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Van Joyce Co. of North Little Rock submitted an apparent low bid of $104,495 Thursday on construction of five homes for staff members at the McRae Memorial Sanatorium at Alexander. Shellnut Construction Co. of Benton bid $47,900 for repairing and painting two patient buildings. The McRae Board deferred acceptance of the bids pending approval of the state Comptroller's Office.

old, white clapboard with doors painted to match the red roofs, oddly similar to the home Gibbon had abandoned. The spaces between them were hardly wide enough to walk through; the parking area was a square of bare sand between the two rows—another good choice for Gibbon because his car could sit out of sight of passing police cruisers.

No. 5 was the center unit in the rear. Barcello — Amalia before he had described Gibbon's car as a "rusty green rattrap sedan." There it was, standing in front of the hiding place Barcello had not yet found.

Blake noticed that No. 6 was dark, and No. 4 was decorated with a sign: "Office." Light shone behind the lowered venetian blind of No. 5. Blake went to the door, knocked — and waited.

No sound came from inside. Blake knocked again, harder — and still the door was not opened. He was frowning. The lights were on. Gibbon's car was here; unless he had walked to one of the nearby bars, he must be in. Blake was close now, and the closeness bred urgency.

Blake reminded himself that this might be a risky move on his part, but it was the only one possible, and unavoidable. Knowing the nature of Gibbon's relationship to Val was vitally essential to him. It would help him to prove to Barcello that he had had no dealings at all with Gibbon. And he could gain still another advantage, even though it might be a small one: since Gibbon was wanted for questioning, he could turn the man over to the police.

Probers Told Syndicate Reaches Out

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mobs-informer Joseph Valachi's story told, Senate probers concentrated today on the legal side of the fence for a police account of the murderous Cosa Nostra crime syndicate.

In five days of testimony ending Wednesday, Valachi has detailed for the Senate Investigations subcommittee the wheels within wheels of the New York-based mob hierarchy and contended its arm reaches to Detroit, Chicago and the Pacific Coast.

The subcommittee announced Detroit Police Commissioner George Edwards is taking the stand as an expert witness, to be followed in subsequent weeks by spokesmen from many cities who will describe what they know about the syndicate.

President Kennedy has nominated Edwards to become a judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals. Edwards continues in his police post pending Senate action on the nomination.

Valachi capped his testimony with a witness-stand confession that he engineered the 1952 murder of a New York mobster, Eugene Gianinni, who had been spotted as an informer for the federal Narcotics Bureau. Valachi showed no sign of remorse as he told of assigning professional gunmen—his "sharpshooters"—to commit the murder.

"Senators, I am testifying without immunity (from prosecution)," the 60-year-old mobster said. He is a convicted New York narcotics racketeer, also served a life term for murder, and claims that now he, too, is under a Cosa Nostra sentence to be slain as an informer.

Valachi said he had volunteered to handle the Gianinni killing, and that it had the sanction of New York mobster Vito Genovese whom he calls Cosa Nostra's dominant figure.

Valachi named these cities, in addition to New York and Detroit, in which he said Cosa Nostra maintains "families" or mobs, and the number of men in each of them:

'Suspense' Theater Off to Good Start

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—NBC's new "Suspense Theatre" was off Thursday night with a fast-paced exciting story that actually justifies the series' name.
The premiere show was the first of a two-part tale called "The Case Against Paul Ryker," and for the first time since multiple series became a television vogue, I am impatient to find out what happens next.
It is a story about a U.S. Army sergeant, played tough, hard and angrily by Lee Marvin, caught shodding the uniform of a Red Chinese major. The scene is war time Korea and he is convicted of treason and sentenced to hang. Bradford Dillman plays the sensitive, able prosecutor plagued by doubts about the justice of the verdict.
It's pure entertainment, and it was fun to watch. And the opening show has set a high standard for itself.
After a month of searching, CBS has a new neighbor for William Post, "Mr. Ed's" owner. It is Leon Ames, most recently seen as a television regular in the title role of "Father of the Bride."
Ames succeeds Larry Keating, who died last August after completing several episodes of the new season. Hope anthology show "Sunday—Meet the Press," NBC, 6-6:30 p.m., interviews Mrs. Ne Din Nhut, Ed Sullivan, CBS, 8-8:30 p.m., satirizes current news events in "What's Going On Here?"; "The Takers," NBC, 10-11, "Show of the Week" original drama about jewel robbery with Walter Matthau and Claude Rains.

Bobcats Whip Crossett 31-0 In 4-AA Victory

Hope Sews Up Homecoming Game Early

By CARTER HARDAGE
Hope Star Sports Writer

The Bobcats completely dominated an injury-plagued Crossett team, both offensively and defensively, to rack up a 31-0 score and an extremely impressive 364 yards rushing, in honor of their Homecoming royalty Friday night.
The real key to the game was the outstanding blocking of the Bobcat forward wall. They repeatedly opened giant holes in the Eagle defense, to make way for long gains by the charging Bobcat backfield. At times it looked as if fullback Richard McDowell just couldn't be stopped. In many instances he would just plain run over anybody who ventured into his path, slowing down just long enough to flatten them, and then continuing on his merry way. He scored two touchdowns before eleven minutes of play had elapsed.
Coach Burton said that "they were as hot as a firecracker. They were mentally at their peak. And there was terrific blocking." Even former Hope coach John Pierce, when asked what he thought about them, admitted that "they looked real good. I'm proud for them. I hope that they can go a long way."

After pregame introduction of the Homecoming royalty, the Bobcats proved to the Eagles that they were out to play some football, by scoring twice within six minutes. Crossett had actually lost the game before it really got under way very well.

The Bobcats went 61 yards on key carries by Johnny Samuels for Richard McDowell to score on a 2-yard dive play. The first of three extra points to fail in the first period was blocked, and Hope jumped into a 6-0 advantage.

Crossett was unable to move, and Hope scored in more plays, this time on a 25-yard run by Johnny Samuels. PAT failed, and the Cats were now out front to the tune of 12-0. The Eagles were getting what they asked for last year.

A plating Richard McDowell set up the next Cat score by brutally trampling two Eagles who got in his way, and moving 20 bone-crushing yards down the field. He scored three plays later on a 3-yard power play over tackle. It was now the end of Quarter. Hope led 18-0, and Crossett had only six yards total offense. You might say that the Eagles had had their wings clipped.

Right after the Quarter, Crossett kicked this rinky-dink punt that was headed straight for the Cat end zone, but somehow slammed on the brakes at the 2-yard line where an Eagle fell on it. This could have been an embarrassing situation, but it didn't seem to bother the Bobcats. They simply went 99-yards in twelve plays, on long carries by McDowell and Vince Massonelli, to let Jerry Waller have the honor of going over from 2. Jordan converted to put the Cats in a 25-0 advantage at the Half.

Hope had racked up a total of 252 yards rushing at the Half, only 1 less than the highest in any whole game (253 at DeQueen). Crossett had managed only 25, and one first down.

Late in the Third Quarter Crossett mounted an attempted drive to the Hope 11, but there it was stopped by a Dan Jones interception.

West Berlin. He was arrested in Kiev July 27, 1961, for allegedly photographing military objectives. He was sentenced to two years in prison plus six years in a corrective labor camp.
Born in Chassel, Mich., Makinen majored in chemistry at the University of Pennsylvania. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Makinen reside in Ashburn N.Y.

The possibility of freeing Makinen was discussed during the negotiations conducted by Brooklyn attorney James B. Donovan for the 1961 exchange of U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers for the Soviet spy Col. Rudolf I. Abel.
Commented Donovan Friday: "I regard it as the fulfillment of their pledge to me at the time of the (Powers-Abel) exchange."

Federal authorities said the current swap was worked out in U.S.-Soviet negotiations in Moscow and Washington.
The Egorovs were arrested last July 2 in their Flushing, Queens, apartment. A federal grand jury indicted them on spy charges just two days ago. Egorov, employed by the United Nations secretariat, claimed diplomatic immunity. This contention was rejected and they were ordered to stand trial Nov. 4.

Students Plan Gate Crashing

FAVETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Some University of Arkansas students, angered because they can't get tickets to the Arkansas-Texas football game in Little Rock Oct. 19, are planning to crash the gates of War Memorial Stadium, a creditable source told The Associated Press today.

The source said individual students were planning the gate-crashing effort and that no student organization was involved. The number of students involved was not known.

The announcement of the plans was reportedly planned for a pep rally in Little Rock the morning of the day of the game.

Fred Favor, president of the university student body, said he had heard reports of the attempt to provide many more seats in the stadium. School officials also have asked the NCAA for permission to televise the game.

Favor said he thought the 350 additional seats "would take a lot of the pressure off. He added that he thought the university was making a sincere effort to televise the game.

Before the extra seats were made available, Favor said, "anything could have happened."

Rookies Surprise U.S. Golfers

By WILL GRIMSLEY

ATLANTA (AP)—A pair of British rookies Brian Huggett and George Will, scored a surprising 3 and 2 victory over Arnold Palmer and Johnny Pott today and gave Britain the first point over the United States in the Ryder Cup golf series.

Huggett, a stocky Welshman, and Will, a lean Scot took the initiative from the heavily favored No. 1 U.S. team by winning the first hole. They were never headed although the Americans twice evened the match.
The pair of 26-year-old pros playing in their first Ryder Cup competition, went two holes ahead at the 15th with the first birdie of the match and closed out the Yanks when Palmer and Pott, scrambling, took a double bogey six at the 16th.

Erratic driving proved the undoing of the American team, playing the first of eight foursome matches in which players hit alternate shots.

Palmer and Pott hit only two of the first nine fairways of the 6,988-yard, par 35-35-70 East Lake course and they constantly were fighting the tenacious Bermuda rough.

— was it yours? Did you know that your footprint identifies you almost as well as your fingerprint. The law uses it to trap the lawless. God uses it to show you where you were when you became conscience smitten. Your tracks tell on you...they give you away. You were where you should not have been and your tracks prove it. Your son was following your tracks when he got into serious trouble. Mr., you write either a good story or a bad one by the tracks you make. Why not resolve to walk toward the church next Sunday... any church...for they are all better than you. Every church in this community offers you a place to work, an opportunity to help others, and the privilege to make tracks for God. Then why not turn your tracks into a testimonial for the Lord, to be read of men, by printing them on the way that leads to church every Sunday.
